Timely Hints From the Beaverlodge Sub-Station

By W. D. Albright

"IT IS A PLEASURE AS WELL AS A DUTY TO SERVE"

The longer we study other grasses the more we think of bromes for general use.

Will the Callaghan Causeway through Lesser Slave Lake best autumn waves and winter ice? Heretic efforts are being made. More power to the steam shovel!

An off season for marketable fruit. The first time our beehives are practically devoid of fruit. Was it the June frost or what?

A steth of leafy canary grass makes a fine showing this year with its thick, tall, leafy growth. As a low land grass it seems promising but being a shy seed producer and seemingly a persistent volunteer from root stocks it may never fill a large place in rotation growing.

Western ryegrass used to rival bromes in hay production on the Beaverlodge Sub-Station but in the last two years' seedlings it has fallen decidedly away in one instance. There is ground to suspect root rot.

To be a successful beekeeper one must know bee behavior under all conditions, normal or abnormal. One must know exactly what the bees may be expected to do under all conditions and be able to out-think and out-wit their reaction. Bees are wild and one cannot touch them. They will merely assist them in making the most of their own capabilities.

Crop competition is a big factor in the fight against weeds. On the Experimental Station this is quite evident in the grass plots. Shepherd's purse, wild barley, volunteer sweet clover, pepper grass and cinchona are conspicuous among the weeds of the weak-growing grasses such as Meadow grass and Western ryegrass, the latter being apparently depleted by root rot. Adjacent plots of bromes of timothy and to some extent of Crested wheatgrass are much freer of pollution. Nature abhors a vacuum.

Anyone who believes the art of agriculture can be reduced to factory regularity or to rule of thumb should try haymaking in a season such as that of 1934 or 1935. In cutting grass plots not quite ready in early July with the second growth up to their knees. A fair comparison of yields under such conditions of prolonged stress between the cutting of two species will take some higher mathematics to figure out.

Wild barley is becoming a grave menace to fields, especially meadows, infesting the new as well as the old. Needs blow in from roadside and keep the pest from seedling there. The writer went to the trouble of the wheat field to find a ball of roadside in front of his place and has been doing some mowing on them. One stretch already has two or three years' growth. It is not a very serious weed as yet but it is a pest. A very serious winter and a late spring with ice running in the Lower March of the St. Lawrence River followed after June 10 by the hottest weather ever seen there by W. D. Clark of Thunder Bay. He planted his garden a week later than ever before yet by the twenty-eighth of June radish plants on the first of that month were of the market size. The north west of the market size and both grain and vegetables were ahead of what they were in any previous year at the same date. Cauliflower promised particularly well. Tomatoes, cucumbers and pumpkins were abundant in their vines and of forcing hot panicles and petunias were in flower. O.A.C. 21 barley and Alaska oats were eight inches tall, with wheat and rye hard after them. Not so good for eighty miles north of the Arctic Circle!

Soil and Preparation for Garden and Windbreak—Direction of Shelter Belts

1. Have been told that newly broken land is not suitable for garden.

2. This year had garden on white soil that broke badly after a rain. Will measure help to prevent the baking?

3. What preparation of soil is necessary for a shelter belt?

4. Intend to build our house facing west. The road runs east and west. What plan would be best for a shelter belt? M.C. North Star, Alta.

Ans. 1. If the land has been well broken in June and is afterwards properly worked up by repeated plowing it should be in fair condition for gardening the next season.

2. Unless there is some imperative reason for facing the house west we urge that it be fronted south or east. A solid windbreak on the west and north is highly desirable and should be built better if the whole protection of convenience or outlook. In this case the windbreak may have to be on one quarter with clumps and belts to the windward giving a degree of shelter while not affording vistas. Much better if the whole protection may be on the north and west, with the grouped plantings and vistas to the south and east.

3. Through summerfallowing.

WEE WORMS and Their Control

Presenting the Latest Practical Information Upon a Subject of Great Importance To Northern Farmers

By Kenneth M. King and W. D. Albright

PART TWO SEVERAL FORMS OF INJURY

Wireworms injure crops in several ways and to a variable extent from year to year, depending upon temperature and moisture conditions, rapidity of early growth and other factors. The damage usually occurs during early summer.

There are several points of attack. Often the ground surface out of the seed, even more frequent and serious is the attack upon the seedling plant, which is so easily killed. As growth advances, the worm cuts into the heart of the stem, again if it is what may support growth for a time, but the central shoot is killed and the plant falls to produce a good head. After seedling begins the injury is less severe, but often in such cases only a little on each plant, but destroys perhaps ten or more because the vital point is attacked. In cool moist seasons for fewer plants are attacked and they recover more easily from the injury. On the other hand, in the truly enormous variation in extent of wireworm damage from year to year, the farmer who has tried seedling methods which can help as greatly to lessen this loss.

IN THE WEST
Entomologists have long realized the importance of the wireworm pest since in 1922 the Dominion Entomological Branch established at Saskatoon a laboratory for its study as to the time western farmers generally should sow to its gravity there might be some data with which to aid them. At this laboratory and also at an outpost station at Swift Current, the wireworm has attracted much attention. Intensively, both from the standpoint of scientific inquiry and from that of application to the farmer conditions. At Swift Current a particularly good opportunity was afforded by a farm which had been acquired by the Experimental Station for the purpose of experimenting with weed control. This piece of land was found as a weedy farm very early in the spring and it was found with wireworms and a series of plots were laid out to study the control of the pest. The results, being centered upon manipulations in the summerfallow, were as follows:

1. To reduce wireworm numbers and to heighten the infestation to a reasonable level:

(a) Above all, keep the summerfallow thoroughly clean during mid-summer. It is evident that by keeping a large proportion of the newly broken wireworms of 1935 season, it is possible to keep them at a low level.

(b) Plow the fallow as early as possible, and to a depth which will kill the wireworms at the time of seedling.

(c) Avoid deep plowing at any time, other than fallow, or at all times, as far as possible.

(d) Time the operations so as to give the fallow during the latter half of June to harvest, many wireworms emerge.

2. The steps taken to lessen the rate of damage possible with a given level of infestation are as follows:

(a) The seedling implements that will first the soil immediately around the seed or on the drill row.

(b) Use good seed and at a considerable depth, rather than in a shallow layer in the fallow from seeds and weeds or cross-drill small infested patches.

(c) Employ a fertilizer that will have the least possible effect on germination, such as superphosphate. Improved currents are much better than old ones, and then cooling for care in their use to avoid the effects on humans and on live stock that might find access to treated seed. At the best, formaldehyde weakens germination and delays early growth, thus leading to materially increased injury by wireworms when abundant.

(d) On soils where phosphate or other fertilizers, barnyard manures or the growing of clovers are helpful in promoting the growth of grain crops, they will help to reduce injury by wireworms.

While these seedling methods are of value anywhere, they should invariably be used, as far as possible, in land known to be seriously infested by wireworms and especially for the crop needed on fallow.

Of our common field crops, oats are the most resistant to attack by wireworms and may profitably be sown placed instead of wheat where the damage tends to be heaviest. Barley comes next, while winter wheat and winter rye make their early growth during the periods when wireworms are usually less active. Spring wheat and rye suffer the most severely of the small grains. Flax is not immune.

Since there are several species of wireworms, differing somewhat in their habits and the conditions under which they are found, any person having a wireworm problem is invited to send specimens for identification to the Dominion Entomological Laboratory, Saskatoon, Sask. These should be placed in a paper bag, not in a tin, and should be sent by registered mail (not by air) and a few letters of what.

A notable recent addition to the ranks of Invested Scouts was Chief Justice H. R. Gendron, who was sworn in at the Superior Court of Quebec, at 74 years of age.

A Camp Clock Memorial

A large outdoor clock was presented to the Camp of the 1935-36 year's permanent Boy Scout camp at the foot of the St. Lawrence River, by ex-Scouts of the late Westmont Temple. The clock was given in memory of members of the troop who lost their lives in the Great War.

If Communities Had the Scout Spirit

Says the St. John's Newfoundland Weekly Herald after describing the energy with which Scouts and Guides of Grand Falls set about renovating an old house and its neighborhood as a Scout headquarters. "What could the people of Grand Falls not do if they could only be animated by a similar community spirit."

A Canadian Legion Tribute to Scouting

There is no better work the Legion can undertake than trying to help the Scout Movement. It touches the heart of the life of the boy and the girl in a way that is so deep and so true that it is a shame to see it so often neglected. The Legion should be a great help to the Scout Movement. It should be a great help to the Scout Movement. It should be a great help to the Scout Movement.

Landing of the Romans—1935

Shades of ancient Roman warriors must have smiled grimly at the sight of a modern day Scout of Canada in a patrol. The Landing of the Romans. Not that the falls didn't mean their words and their efforts. It was the bandages and helmets that were old and battle-battered and the modern day Scout of Canada in a patrol. The Landing of the Romans.

A Scout Pilgrimage to Mexico

A scout pilgrimage to Mexico was that of 24 Scouts and Scouters from the first movement, which at Flagstaff, B.C. and leaders were in Scout uniforms and traveled in their own cars. They were on the modern highway to the sacred site of Mohave-medicine. King Ben Sand greeted them at Mecca and granted them the privilege of taking pictures and other special concessions. King Ben Sand is a strong friend of the Boy Scouts, of whom there are some 12,000 in Iraq.

Public Libraries Adding Scout Books

One of the signs of the increasing interest in Scouting is the adding of books on Scouting subjects to public libraries. Recently 19 new volumes were added to the Scout section of the public library at Medicine Hat, Alta. and 21 to the library at Saskatoon.

As an expression of appreciation of their receipt and conservation of a gift, a visit to Japan, the Boy Scouts of Canada presented a pair of Borneo elephants to the Dominion of the Flower Kingdom. The animals were given to the Dominion of the Flower Kingdom, and are now on loan to the Dominion of the Flower Kingdom, and are now on loan to the Dominion of the Flower Kingdom.

Bridge-water's Silver Jubilee Arch

Prison Surgeon on Crime Reduction

In Amos O. Riquie, surgeon at the new prison, addressing a Rotary International Conference at Niagara Falls, N.Y., offered four ways by which crime might be reduced: 1. Do not let criminals. 2. Give the boy who has made his first mistake another chance. 3. Back the Boy Scouts and Girl Guides. 4. More attention by parents to their own children. He added: "Back the Boy Scouts and Girl Guides because they are developing character. I never had a boy enter prison who admitted he was a Boy Scout."

The latest reports indicate that there will be a fairly active movement of eggs from Canada to the United Kingdom this year.

Canada supplies 90 per cent of the seed potato market in Cuba. Cuban potatoes replanted in Cuban soil will not reproduce. It is estimated that 100,000 seed potatoes are imported. Two crops of potatoes are harvested in that country every year.

A Final Appeal

To the Intelligence of the Electors of the Grande Prairie Constituency.

By way of introduction, may I quote the figures to refute a statement frequently heard, viz: That the revenue collected by the Alberta Government in the Peace River area is not spent there but is used in other parts of the province.

This statement covers the whole Peace River, everything north and west of Smith on the N.A.R. Revenue from Gas Tax (1,500,000 gallons at 6c per gallon, of which total 25 per cent was refunded). These are last year's figures. $ 67,500 Revenue from Motor Licenses. 35,000

Total Revenue from these sources. 102,500

Total expenditure on roads, bridges and ferries in this area by the Government, ment, but not including carrying charges (interest and sinking fund). 167,312

In previous years the excess of expenditures over revenue in this area has been much greater than this and there never has been the slightest foundation for the above statement.

I wish to draw attention to a glaring misstatement or blunder contained in the "Policy of the Conservative Candidate" where he states that up to the end of 1934 Alberta had collected no motor license and gas tax approximately $25,000,000, while the total expenditure on roads, bridges and ferries was $5,000,000. The first figure is correct, but the second should be $64,500,000, almost six times the figure Mr. McKenzie quotes.

In the Grande Prairie constituency two of the government's chief sources of revenue were for the last fiscal year: Profits from Vendor's Store, $5,200; Supplemental Revenue Tax, $19,500; a total of $24,700, against which may be offset one item alone, grants to schools $31,300.

In the unorganized districts of this constituency there was spent by the Government last year $55,000 for Direct Relief, $17,000 for Medical Assistance and Hospitalization, $9,000 for Mothers Allowance, and $7,000 for Old Age Pensions—a total of $88,000, all of which had to be advanced by the Government in cash. During the past five years the Government has advanced in cash to these parts of this constituency approximately $200,000 in cash. Most of this will be repaid by the Government in cash eventually on roads in the constituency, but little if any will be recovered by the Government in cash.

The Government has advanced to the Municipal Hospital in Grande Prairie in cash almost $200,000, representing approximately $200,000 in L. D. in order to make it possible for the hospital to carry on. Much of this will never be recovered.

There are three District Nurses in this constituency maintained by the Government, besides two doctors who are Government employees. It is difficult, almost impossible, to get all revenue and all expenditure in this area segregated, but it is safe to say that for every dollar collected in revenue in this constituency the Government has spent two.

This has been the "Basic Dividend" distributed by the present Government, and they maintain that it has gone to those who needed it most and that the total amount cannot be appreciably increased. The contribution of this amount of money has been possible through the co-operation and assistance of the Dominion Government and any defiance of the Dominion is to make a fantastic economic experiment will certainly mean the cutting off at once of all these services.

It is significant that "Social Credit" speakers are now soft peddling the famous "$25 a month dividend" and the interest free loans to farmers, realizing that there isn't the slightest chance of either one ever being put into effect.

They are now concentrating on monetary reforms, low interest rates, etc., and other matters which have been urged by T. F. A. members at Ottawa for many years and which are concurred in by the most part by practically everyone in western Canada regardless of politics—but they are all Federal matters and a provincial government can do no more than the present government has done—that is, urge them on the Dominion government.

My only comment on Liberal and Conservative appeals to the electors to save the country by returning them to office is that they have both been in office in Saskatchewan and British Columbia and have placed both those provinces in worse positions than is Alberta today and the Liberals in both provinces would be voted out today if the people had a chance to do it.

I would like to refer you again to Premier Ridd's manifesto to that paragraph which says:

The Government has brought the Province through the greatest depression in the world's history, and in appealing to the people for a renewal of their confidence it challenges its critics to compare its record with any other standard of comparison and to show where any government similarly situated has met its problems and carried its people through to better advantage."

In conclusion I am appealing for your support personally as one of those who pioneered in this country twenty-five years ago. Who, too, lived here during that period all of whose interests are in this district, and will continue to be regardless of the results of the election.

(Signed) HUGH W. ALLEN.

What One Girl Wore:

By Betty Brownlee

The perennial popularity of navy and white in the smartest summer costumes makes the selection of accessories a comparatively simple one. With a frock or suit in these colors one may wear accessories either of navy entirely, white entirely, or in a combination of both.

This week we illustrate a trio of items which are ideal for fall and wear.

The white felt hat has a deep upturned brim edged with navy grosgrain and a matching band. There is no wiring in the brim, which gives it a soft crushable appearance and relieves any hint of severity.

The gloves are particularly smart. Of French velvet, a beautifully soft material, they are not knipped and the sectional stitches are also in white. These are nice gloves for general all-around wear.

A one-strap pump of white doecsin, combined with navy calf, is a smart accessory for the navy and white costume. The wide strap is very new and nice detail to be found in the illustrated styles.

Interesting to note is the fact that the hat illustrated this week is not only a repetition of a type which has been extremely popular throughout the summer months, but one which advances indications show to be a fall trend also. The navy and white variations, but in one way or another the latest millinery certainly accents the front part of the hat.

There are best types which are worn toward the front, new versions of the "chaper" hat, and the very latest from Paris is the "bat-bat," a hat styled much like a visor. The hat is usually squared and comes

"Is there anyone inside?" she asked him, and received the answer, "My young are upstairs."

"May I go in and get them out?" asked the white man, for he knew even in such a case the strict rules of caste and "purdah" had to be observed.

"Come then, sahib," came the reply. And to the dining hall he went, and to a small room filled with white men. Inside the room were three women and a child. There, in a huge, smoky room, they were calmly cooking food. And when he shouted, "Outside quickly, or you die!" they turned their eyes on him in wonderment, and then, remembering the decencies, carefully drew their veils over their faces. They were saved—but only a few moments later the roof fell in.

THE BRAHMIN BRIDE

There is another true story of the fiddlers and absurdities of the caste system.

A certain Colonel Gaseley was at one time deputy commissioner of the Punjab and was extremely popular with the people, who called him "Waseley Sahib."

The colonel took it into his head to marry, and as there was no white woman available, he chose a Hindu, a Brahmin lady—a woman of

She was immediately outcast by her people for having defied herself by marrying an European.

This did not at all suit "Waseley Sahib," and he took steps.

He gave a party and invited all his wife's relations, and since he was head of the district and chief magistrate, the relations had to accept the invitation.

When they were all assembled the colonel offered them food, which he assured them had been prepared by a Brahmin. As they had to accept.

After the meal was finished "Waseley Sahib" calmly told them it was his wife who had prepared the food, that she was a Brahmin, as they very well knew, and that since she had eaten food at her hands, they must perform her caste-follies.

Further, since they had declared that she could no longer be received in the house of the district and chief magistrate, the relations had to accept the invitation.

C. Woodland and John Dick of Wankarem were business visitors to Grande Prairie between trains on Tuesday. They report crops good but late in their section.

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick's new home north of Bear Lake is nearing completion and will be ready for occupancy in a few weeks.

The lovely new home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Frewer at Lake Saskatchewan, following a modern and well-planned solid stone foundation, is rapidly taking shape under Contractor W. R. Knight's supervision. The lumber is being provided by the Frontier Lumber Company, the hardware and fixtures by Gordon Orr's hardware store.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE
At all Christian Science churches next Sunday the subject of the Lesson sermon will be "Soul."

The following is one of the scriptural quotations contained in the Lesson sermon: "And great multitudes came unto him, having with them those who were lame, blind, dumb, maimed, and many others, and cast them down at Jesus' feet, and he healed them; from hence the multitude desired that they saw the dumb to walk, and the blind to see, and they glorified the God of Israel."

Matthew 15:30-31. One of the relative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, is as follows (page 428): "A demonstration of the facts of Soul in Jesus' way reveals the dark visions of material sense into harmony and immortality. To direct thought, to bring truth and material evidence in order that the spiritual facts of being may appear, this is the great attainment by means of the water system is being installed by Henry Butcher.

Mr. Allan McQuarrie returned on Tuesday from Edmonton. While in the city he attended the summer school of the University of Alberta.

Mr. Mervin Lewis reports a very enjoyable holiday at his home in the city. He returned on Tuesday following an absence of almost four weeks.

The traditional glory of Oriental dynasties pervaded the home of Mr. Mervin Lewis of the Palace Cafe on Tuesday evening, on the occasion of his birthday anniversary. A large number of friends sympathetically joined in the birthday celebration, and the lucky guests were still exchanging fond reminiscences on Wednesday.

ting for the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Geo. A. Shields of Beaver Lodge. The bride entered the living room on the arm of her father, to the strains of the wedding march played by her grandfather, Mr. Logan W. Davis, formerly of Cleveland, B.C. The bride was lovely in her gown of white silk lace, trimmed with long slim tulle, with tulle of tulle about the hem-line. Her bouquet was of roses, and tiny rosebuds held in place her veil of embroidered tulle. Miss Marion Heller, cousin of the bride, was a dainty bridesmaid in a dress of pale pink crepe, with which she carried an arm bouquet of pink and white asters. Mr. Arthur Dixon supported the groom. During the signing of the register, Mrs. Davis played "The Voice That Breathed Ourselves." Following the ceremony, some twenty near relatives and intimate friends sat down at the wedding supper.

After a short honeymoon spent in the Beaver Lodge, Mr. and Mrs. Bacon left by the next train for North Edmonton, where they will make their future home. The bride traveled in a becoming far-trimmed cape suit of beige, with tulle which she wore brown accessories.

The wedding is of special interest to residents of the Grande Prairie district as Mr. and Mrs. Dixon travelled over the Edmonton Trail in 1911 to the Beaver Lodge district. The bride was the first child born in the original Grande Prairie hospital, and in this exception of the time spent completing her education in Vermilion and Edmonton, has spent all her life in this district. The young couple carry with them the best wishes of their many friends in the Peace River country.

At one time during Sunday 220 cars were counted, and the course was filled at times. The wind was from the northwest, the first part of the day and was quite strong and helped materially to ruin several scores. Later in the day it changed to a west wind and not quite so strong.

HOLE IN ONE

The highlight of the day's play was when W. S. Smith of Sexsmith made a hole-in-one on No. 3 while playing his match with Jack Marvin in the Dunlop Handicap Tournament. Many were the questions on how he managed to do the trick, but Mr. Smith said that his ball landed in the hole of the green and trickled into the cup.

Before Mr. Smith left the course he was quite happy saying "Thanks" for the congratulations showered upon him. Now that "W. S." has shown that it is possible, we are liable to hear of another one becoming a member of the "Hole-in-One Club."

PARIS, Aug. 15.—Direct threat of war unless Italy gets political concessions in Ethiopia by peaceable means was voiced today by Benito Mussolini in an interview here with Premier Laval. Italy must have more than economic concessions, he warned, and unless she gets satisfaction in her demands, she will use force. The nation has concentrated 170,000 men in its two colonies bordering Ethiopia and is ready to use them if necessary. "Today's conversations seemed only to deepen the pessimism of officials."

EDMONTON, Aug. 15.—Increased approximately $4,000,000 during the fiscal year ending March 31, 1935, Alberta's net public debt at that date was $136,122,780, as against $132,141,064 at the same date a year ago. MR. MCKENZIE
Jack McKenzie, Conservative provincial candidate, advocated forms of economy which could be put in operation. He pointed out that the Dominion Department of Agriculture, together with the University Department of Agriculture, could be so combined as to result in greater efficiency and economy.

Continuing, Mr. McKenzie condemned the collecting of income tax by the federal and provincial governments from the same people, pointing out that one department could handle all the work at a great saving to the taxpayer.

Reorganization of the provincial system of education was another reason advanced by the speaker, who then went on to say that the responsibility of making the teachers should be assumed by the government and a greater measure of responsibility in other ways should also be assumed.

The matter of building and maintaining roads and highways was then dealt with. In the opinion of Mr. McKenzie the whole of the gasoline tax should be allocated to earmarked for the building and maintaining of roads.

The speaker pointed out that in 1927 to 1934 the gasoline tax for the province amounted to $12,000,000 and the motor vehicle license $11,000,000, a total of $23,000,000. In the year 1934, the government spent $50,000,000 on highways, ferries and bridges, with the result that $1,900,000, which came out of these two taxes, had been carried to general revenue. Mr. McKenzie contended that had these two taxes been spent on market and farmer roads every farmer in this province would have a road from his farm to the market.

Mr. McKenzie deprecated the wildcat schemes of the Liberal party, which he said was a "Social Credit" and was of the opinion that the province was in urgent need of a Conservative govern-

USE YOUR FRANCHISE

Next Thursday, August 22, the electors of the province of Alberta will be called upon to express their choice as to the candidate they wish to represent them and the party they wish to place in power.

In the Grande Prairie constituency there are four candidates in the field, representing the same number of parties.

It is the duty of every voter to exercise his or her franchise and express through the ballot the kind of government he or she wants.

Too often the franchise is lightly looked upon. Voters should remember that it took years of battling to finally secure the ballot for every adult in the Dominion.

It therefore behooves the electors to show their appreciation of the priceless gift by going to the polls and casting their ballots.

By the time election day rolls round the policies of the various parties will have been set forth by the candidates in every section of the constituency. The issues are great, the conditions distressing. It is therefore the duty of every citizen to consider seriously the policies of the candidates and the policies offered.

Remember on that day you are equal with any other citizen, rich or poor, in the land if you exercise your franchise.

Go to the polls willingly, remembering that the privilege to vote was dearly bought.

William J. Eaton, London, N. C., was appointed Minister of Fisheries, a post vacant for some time. General Cabel, Minister of Finance, was made minister without portfolio. The four took the oath of office before the Governor General and a few minutes later attended their first cabinet meeting.

PEACE RIVERITES PICNIC ATTENDED BY MISS WATSON

Following a two-weeks vacation at Bellingham and Vancouver, Miss Emilie Watson arrived in Grande Prairie recently with her mother, Mrs. J. Watson of Wembley, who had been visiting at the Bert Taylors in Burnaby, Vancouver, since Easter. While at the coast, Miss Watson attended the Peace Riverites' picnic at Stanley Park, where she met Mr. and Mrs. Ben Harmer, the Misses Gertrude and Randa Dandy, and Mr. Garnett Pratt, all formerly of Grande Prairie. Mrs. Harmer and Miss Gertrude Dandy will have a large responsibility for organizing the Peace Riverites' annual outing and they were entitled to much credit for planning this very enjoyable event. "Mr. and Mrs. Harmer were very hospitable," said Miss Watson, "and they wished to be remembered to all their friends in Grande Prairie."

Of the many attractions at the coast, Miss Watson particularly enjoyed golfing, the Langara Hotel, and a moonlight excursion to Bowen Island, the party including Mr. Garnett Pratt and Miss Emilie Dandy, proved a delightful evening.

NEW BUILDINGS

The following new buildings are among those to be constructed at Grande Prairie this season: Bill Fleming are erecting a new warehouse at the back of their store, size 28 feet by 40 feet. Alex Smith, who had his truck-making shop burning to the ground, will commence construction of a new shop next Monday.

Shaver & Turner are the contractors for both buildings.

IN GRATITUDE

By Grace Nell Crowell

While these remain, our gratitude should lift
Like sweet incense vapor after summer rain
The still unconquered land, the priceless gift of God.

Of seed and sun, and the fulfilling grain,
The little homes that dot the countryside
Like jewels strung along each road and lane.

While there remains the faith to plant again,
While there is hope and courage for the day
And a woman's love to cheer the heart of men.

His love for them, their wish and need to pray—
Lord, be kind and turn to Thee and kneel as we.

There is so much to thank Thee for today.

An Appeal to Electors

Owing to the short time at my disposal, I have been unable to reach as many districts as I should before election day. But, being a farmer, and one who knows and understands your troubles and difficulties, I will FIGHT for this constituency all the time. I solicit your vote on election day.
